To the descendants of Matthias Button who came to America with Governor John Endicott, landing at Salem, Mass., September 24, 1628, and died at Haverhill, Mass., August 13, 1679 (Gen. Reg., Vol. VI, p. 206 and Haverhill T. Rec.)

The writer, a direct descendant of said Matthias Button (being a great-grandson of Matthias Button the 3th, son of Matthias and Mary (Browne) Button, his second wife, of Westery, R. I., born there April 22, 1732, was of Canterbury and Groton, Ct., and died at Wells, Vt., in 1811), has, at intervals, during the past twenty years, been collecting family records—historical and biographical sketches of the aforesaid immigrant, his family and descendants—for the purpose of compiling and eventually publishing a genealogy of the family in America.

In 1880 the writer published an outline sketch of this ancestor, his family and early descendants, including also sketches of some of the later generations of the family, for the purpose of attracting correspondents to forward their family lines and placing their names in aid of said project in co-operation with us, in our efforts in compiling a new and enlarged edition to said sketch, and also to establish funds for reimbursement and incidental expenses incurred in carrying out said project preparatory to the publication of the proposed genealogy, by collecting $1 per copy for said sketch. But notwithstanding many who have appreciated our efforts in this behalf, were liberal in ordering one or more copies of the sketch, there were others, however, who seem to be careless and indifferent, or perhaps not realizing the importance or pleasure of possessing such a family history of their antecedents, to be handed down to their posterity.

Not realizing sufficient from this source to enable us to push the work in hand, often requiring advances from $1 large for some of public records, we could only work as we received funds to work with; hence the unusual delay in the progress of our family enterprise, having already exhausted all we could spare from our limited resources, which were largely an excess of receipts from the sale of old stock.

Not dissuaded impatient and determined to accomplish the purpose which we had courageously undertaken as private and being steadily favored financially, we commenced to work your records more strenuously, and the result has been that within the past three years we have accomplished more than we had previously accomplished since the publication of said sketch in 1880. But, how very few dollars received from the sale of said stock, we have obtained 20,000,000. In excess.

We have now accumulated an extensive collection of various names and more interesting sketches of family names and genealogical biography of the several branches of the family from public records, local history and other various sources which, when complete, is sufficient to fill up, at least 250 pages in a book of ordinary library size. The circulation of said sketch, our extended correspondence and searches made in localities where the family name is represented, has had the effect to excite the interest of many prominent members of the family, who are with each other in collecting and contributing family records and interesting data in co-operation with us in this behalf, among whom are expert and professional genealogists which naturally increases our prospects of success.

In our first conception of the project as outlined in the abstract given of 1880, our estimate of the probable extent of time to be employed and cost of such an undertaking was subsequently found to have been considerably underestimated, as upon further investigation it was found that descendants greatly outnumbered our previous estimates thereof, and like many of the earlier settlers, had frequently changed their place of residence before settling down for life, it was, therefore, found very diffi-cut in tracing them to those intermediate places where important records might be found.

The work as now outlined when the missing links in the several branches shall have been supplied will make a book of not less than 250 pages of ordinary size, as aforesaid, of small pica style of type, cloth bound and otherwise of good material, and will cost not less than $400 for 500 copies, including the postage in delivering and exclusive of incidental expenses incurred in collecting the family records in closing the chain of descent, which is still incomplete in several of the family branches, as herein after shown.

Now, therefore, it becomes expedient to devise some method by which the aforesaid sum may be contributed and advanced by the descendants in small installments, from time to time, as required in the progress of the work to be accomplished in this connection, and accordingly we have devised the following as being in our opinion the most feasible for the purpose, which we submit for consideration, viz:

To affix the price of $5 per copy of said genealogy (which corresponds with the price of other genealogies of a like size), to be paid in equal installments of $1.25 each; the first to be advanced when ordering a form of subscription prepared for the purpose, which is to be used to cover incidental expenses as heretofore specified; the second and third installment to be held subject to future advances, which may be shown to be necessary in the course of progress of the work in hand by a duly authenticated report of the receipts and disbursements, showing a deficiency of funds needed for said purpose in the regular progress of the work to be accomplished preparatory to the publication of said book; the fourth, and last, installment to be paid when notice shall be received by the subscriber, in due form, of the publication of said book and the same being ready for delivery thereof; provided, however, that said reports so made by us from time to time and notice of publication shall be certified and endorsed by an officer of our local bank or other promiment hereby is being in accordance with the facts therein enclosed, and provided further, that no second or subsequent demand shall be made on the subscriber until there shall have been received at least the subscriptions for said book, which fact shall be noted in said report and duly verified as aforesaid. And in the event that the aforesaid number of subscriptions shall not have been so received, the publication of said book must, of necessity, be deferred and rest contingent upon the receipt of said number of subscriptions; and the money so received by the first advanced installment will be applied as reimbursement to cover incidental expenses advanced and incurred as aforesaid. The foregoing specified terms and conditions are hereby submitted for approval or disapproval, by interested parties, but is intended to be favorable, as protection against possible bad faith on our part, and is the basis upon which the proposed cooperation can be carried out; and when approved by making a subscription for said book shall be deemed as evidence of good faith by the subscriber and binding as between the parties thereto and their representatives and assigns, the said subscription and agreement to be substantially in accordance with the foregoing and as collateral thereto.

In the conception of this family genealogy as its promoter, the writer was actuated mainly by a desire to learn something more definite respecting our ancestors than as usually obtained from traditional sources—as handed down from parent to child and recounted in presence of the family circle—often misquoted as facts, and also by a desire to show our respects to the memory of our deceased ancestry and kindred by thus resuscitating (for posterity) their records and history for all time of those of whom tradition says were worthy and generally of an industrious class—occupying, rather, the upper middle walks of life, as thrifty farmers, artisans, professional men, statesmen and soldiers (of both rank and file), several of whom were more or less distinguished as such, and were well represented in the early Indian and Colonial wars, including the great Revolutionary struggle for liberty and national independence, several of whom having laid down their lives in their country's cause, in all the wars in which our country has been engaged down to the present time, as their history will show in the proposed genealogy.

Therefore, in gratitude for our common inheritance of American citizenship, which, by their patriotism, valor and loyalty they helped to establish, let us join in dedicating this family history as a lasting monument to their memory, and those of their kindred dead.

And let us hope that all descendants of this, our common ancestor, may be moved by a like sentiment, or just pride of ancestry, on receipt of this little booklet, and hasten to contribute towards this worthy project by subscribing for the projected book, thus adding to the requisite number which will insure its speedy publication; and also without delay (if they have not previously done so), proceed to collect family records both of their own family, as also that of their father's, grandfather's and other remote ancestors, which they may be able to secure, giving names, dates and places of births, marriages and deaths, and noting the sources from whence all material information was obtained, thus furnishing a ready reference to where the same may be obtained as evidence of descent and title to inheritances which may have accrued to any individual or family named in said book, at the same time relieve us from responsibility of possible errors which may occur in the compilation of this genealogy, by placing the same where it shall appear to belong.

The sources from whence family records should be sought are Family Bibles, Township Clerk's office, Probate Courts, where records of wills and administrations of intestates estates give the names of parents and children, and church records of baptisms and marriages; registers of deeds, give names of husband and wife; monuments show dates of births, deaths and relationship of the deceased; town and local history often discloses names and dates of births, marriages, deaths, etc.

The following example may suffice, and should be observed in preparing family records in order to save much time and waste paper:

Roswell Button, Jr.

Roswell Button, Jr., (son of Roswell and Lydia (Spicer) Button of Preston, Conn.) b. there Jan. —, 1784, d. — 18, —; m. Jan. 11, 1807, Lydia Avery (dan. of John and Mary (Allyn) Avery of Groton, Conn.) who was b. March 23, 1786, and died July 24, 1866. Their children were:

- I. Appleton Avery, b. Oct. 31, 1807, died Oct. 15, 1889, near Springfield, Mo; m. —, 1857, Susannah —, and had a dau. who died in infancy, and son Alfred, b. in St. Louis, Mo., (supposed to have gone to the Philippine Islands). The father was a builder and contractor in St. Louis.
- II. William Palmer, b. Aug. 31, 1809, d. Mar. 15, 1866, in Quebec, Canada, a single man; was a carpenter, contractor and builder.
- III. Lucius Lucian, b. July 6, 1811, d. at Norwich, Conn., Jan. 29, 1885; a professor and physician; m. — Sabina Doulbear.
- IV. Stephen Decatur, b. at Preston, Conn., June 8, 1813, d. at Camden, N. J., Jan. 7, 1897; a famous architect; m. 1st Maria Pierts, m. 2d Maria Goodwill of Munson, Mass.
- V. Mary Ann, b. May 8, 1815, m. — Joseph Hoxsie, an architect, in Philadelphia, Pa.
- VI. Nancy Ade, b. Jan. 19, 1817, m. — Joseph Hoxsie, her dead sister Mary Ann's husband, who died. She survives her husband and is still living in Chicago, a widow.

Stephen Decatur Burton, dead, late of Camden, N. J., was one of the oldest and most celebrated architects in the United States, whose works are to be found in many parts of New Jersey, Pennsylvania and other states.

The following are among the most noteworthy structures, viz: State House, Montgomery, Ala.; railroad office, Broad street, Philadelphia, (first fire-proof building in Phila.); Spring Garden Institute, Phila.; Chestnut Street Theater, Phila.; First Baptist Church, Phila. (Broad and Arch Sts.), including many other churches, market houses and private residences in the city of Philadelphia. He planned the State House, Anson in Delaware. In New Jersey he planned the City Hall. Two ferry houses, seven churches and thirteen school houses at Camden. An almshouse for five women and Cape May inmates. The Howland House at Long Beach and many residences, hotels and public buildings throughout the state. He left a valuable architectural library to the Philadelphia Chapter. He was also a good archaeologist, and left a collection of 5,000 valuable specimens which was presented to the high school of Camden by his daughter. He left two children—a daughter Mary, in 1814, and son William G. Burton, building inspector of Philadelphia.

The above is from an obituary obituary from a Camden newspaper bearing date immediate or subsequent to the death of Mr. Burton, as copied for the interested reader as a specimen of many similar sketches received for the proposed genealogy.

The following are the several branches of the family in which the chain of descent is still incomplete—lacking missing links, wanted to complete their records, viz:

Peter Burton of Stonington, Ct. and Westerlo, R. I.—son of Matthias and Teagle Burton of Haverhill, Mass.; born there July 17, 1680; d. at Stonington, Ct., 1796; and Mary (daugh. of George Lamphere of Westerlo, R. I.) 1687, and had Peter, Mary, Matthias and Eliphail, born Stonington, Ct., and Jehadiah, Samuel, Cyrus, Joseph and one Elizabeth—the latter five born at Westerlo, R. I.

The will of Peter Burton, made at Westerlo, R. I.,

January 4, 1723, names wife Mary as his executor, son Matthias, Jeshadiah, Samuel, Cyrus, Joseph and (1706, dau. Eliphaz Parks, dau. Mary Lewis—his dau. Elizabeth not named in the will and probably had died unmarried.

As the will of Peter Button was made and executed in Wosterly, R. I., in 1729, and as records show he died in Stonington in 1795, it is evident that he first lived in Stonington, where four of his children were born. Three moved to Wosterly about 1695, where he purchased 100 acres of land, which he divided among his six sons, and probably returned to Stonington to spend his remaining days (perhaps with son or daughter living there), as he was quite well advanced in years.

Now we have much of the family records of his children and descendants more or less incomplete—wadded, nevertheless, records of the numerous descendants of Peter and Mary Button down to the present generation, where the same has not hitherto been sent in.

of their descendants. We have dates of birth of all of his children.

Daniel Button, who md. Elizabeth (daug. of Matthias and Elizabeth (Butt) Button of Canterbury and Groton, Ct.), his cousin. We have records of the family, more or less incomplete.

Wanted, parentage of Daniel Button, date and place of his birth, marriage and death, and family records of his descendants, which have not heretofore been furnished, down to the latest generation.

Benjamin Button (son of Matthias and Phoebe (Butt) Button of Canterbury), born there 1750; md. about 1782 or '3 Esther Chapman; lived at one time at Roman's Creek, Schoharie county, N. Y.; was justice of the peace some 40 years. They had dau. Lydia, b. July 3, 1784, who md. November 13, 1804, John Stair, or Star.

Wanted, names, dates and places of births, marriages and deaths of the rest of their children and records of their descendants—addresses of living members thereof.

John Button of Schaghticoke, N. Y., born in Connecticut —, 1754; md. 1st March 21, 1783, Mary Ransom, probably sister of Abigail, 2d wife of Jesse Button of Canterbury, Ct., and probably married there, (and may have been brother or cousin of Jesse). John Button was in the Revolutionary war with his brother Simeon, both who, after the war, came west and settled at Pittstown, N. Y. John moved thence to Schaghticoke and became a farmer. From 1st marriage had 17 children. His 1st wife died in 1819. He md. 2d Mary Burch, nee Low, in 1821 and had 3 children. His widow died in 1872. We have the year of births and deaths of all of the 15 children, and names of those to whom married. Names of grandchildren—86 in all.

Wanted, day of month of births of children, where born, date of marriage of each and deaths. Same of all of the grandchildren and their descendants to the latest generation.

Simeon Button (bro. of John) settled at Pittstown, N. Y. Farmer and subsequently became a distinguished lawyer, Judge of Probate and politician. Held many offices of trust. His descendants, it is said, still occupy the old homestead at Pittstowu, of whom we have a record of a few of the children more or less incomplete.

Wanted, all family records of the descendants of Simeon Button, including his parentage and date and place of his birth and marriage. Tradition says that John and Simeon Button were the sons of Rufus Button, who, with a brother, was in the old French war. His brother was killed, but he returned, married and settled at or near a place called Jewett City in Connecticut, where he raised a large family of 15 children including John and Simeon. We have as yet, been unable to locate Rufus Button and family, except the Rufus and Elizabeth Button of Hopkinton, R. I. who had a son Abel, born there June 5, 1763, nine years after the birth of John, which, as the family of John's parents, consisted of 15 children, this Rufus Button may have been the father of John and Simeon by a former marriage. There were several families of Buttons who moved from Connecticut and settled in Hopkinton, R. I. as the town records show; and it is very probable that Rufus and Elizabeth Button may have moved there from Jewett City, Ct., and that their son Abel, born there June 5, 1763, was one of their youngest, if not the youngest of the family by a 2d marriage. Any better solution of this problem how ever, will be thankfully received.

Joseph Button of Danby, Vt., who came from Rhode Island in 1785, to Anna Davis and settled on what has since been known as the Button farm, now owned by Howell Dillingham. He kept a store there for several years, which was about the first store in town, and also manufactured potash. He was one of the early members of the Quaker Society, and was very influential. He accumulated a large property and was considered one of the wealthiest man of his day, and exerted great influence among the people of his times. Being a man of great force and energy, he contributed much in building up society, perhaps more than men in general. He was held in high esteem by his friends and neighbors. He died in 1829, aged 80.

Their children were:

Charles, Samuel, Joseph, Ezekiel, Seneca, Thomas, Anson, Anna and Rhoda. It is said that only two or three are now living. Thomas md. Lydia (dau. of Harris Otis) and settled where Albert Bucklin now lives. He died leaving three children—Ann Eliza, Sarah and Elizabeth. Ann Eliza md. David J. Haviland and Sarah md. Benjamin Peck of Queensbury, N. Y.

Anson (son of Joseph and Anna (Davis) Button of Danby, Vt.) md. Catherine (dau. of Isaac Vail) and settled on the old homestead. He had a brick yard near the residence of Henry Kelley, where he manufactured brick. He built the first and only brick dwelling house in the town. He was killed in falling from a load of hay in 1845. They raised a family of 7 children—Joseph, Isaac, Anna, Rhoda, Emily, Eunice and Charity. Joseph md. Melissa, dau. of Silas Hulett; Isaac md. Ellen, dau. of Silas Hulett. Joseph and Isaac live in California. Rhoda md. Hannibal Hopkins of Wallingford and died in 1853, aged 24, leaving one daughter, Rhoda B.

Wanted, the family records of the descendants of Joseph Button, Sr., his parentage and date and place of birth and marriage.

Capt. Matthias Button, the 4th, of Canterbury and Groton, Ct. (son of Matthias and Mary (Brown) Button of Westerly, R. I.) b. there April 22, 1732. d. at Wells, Vt., —, 1811, aged 79 years; was ensign and captain in train band; was captain in war of Revolution; a farmer. Md. 1st Phoebe Butt, 1753; md. 2d, 1765, Elizabeth Butt, her sister. Children of 1st marriage were: Molly, Joseph, Nathan, Benjamin, Matthias, Jr., Eunice and Charlotte; children of 2d marriage were: Asa, Elizabeth (who md. Daniel Button), Jonas, Shubel, Nathan, Joel and Amos.

Their descendants live in Ohio, New York, Michigan, Dakota and Massachusetts, of whom we have partial records more or less incomplete.

Wanted, records of all branches of the family brought down to date.

Joseph Batton of Windham, Ct., and Wells, Vt., (son of Matthias and Phoebe Bitton of Groton, Ct.) b. Canterbury, Ct., about 1755 or '7; m 1. Sarah Glass of Windham, Ct.; m 2. Mrs. Mary Parks, a widow, of Wells, Vt. He d. in 1823. He left a large family of children, among whom were Rufus, Joseph and Elijah. Their descendants are in Chautauque county, N. Y., and in North Dakota.

Wanted, all records brought down to date.

Lysander Batton of Waterford, N. Y., the inventor and for many years the manufacturer) of the justly celebrated Batton Fire Engine at Waterford.

Wanted, the parentage of Lysander Batton, date and place of his birth, marriage and family records and sketch of his life.

All information respecting this gentleman and antecedents will be most gratefully received, and will find a conspicuous place in the Batton genealogy, with illustrations.

Col. Samuel Batton of Groton, Ct., md. Sarah (dau. of Ebenezer and Sarah (Hill) Lamb of Groton) and had Mary, Anna, Susan, Sally, Eunice, Lois, Joshua, Joseph, Nathan and Percy.

Wanted, the parentage of Col. Samuel Batton, date and place of his birth, marriage and death; same of the children and the family records of their descendants.

There are other branches of the family in which records are more or less incomplete, but the foregoing is all we have space for in this little booklet, which, it is hoped, will materially aid in closing the records. Of course we invite contributions of records and sketches of history from every family who have not hitherto contributed the same for the work now in process, and without delay.

The book will include an interesting preamble, with a frontispiece of an ancient coat of arms and motto of a Rev. Thomas Batton who was installed bishop of Exeter, England, January 15, 1293, which the writer has had reproduced from its heraldic description (by a young lady descendant of our ancestor, who is an expert heraldic artist and a professional genealogist), as copied from an English genealogical work in Boston, Mass. The cut (as represented in this booklet as frontispiece) the writer had engraved from a beautiful water color picture executed by our kinslady as a specimen of her work, which is a masterpiece of the beautiful art, which we think cannot be excelled.

The preamble will also include several pages of most interesting sketches of history and biography of the ancient English and French branches of our supposed antecedents dating back to 1037, showing our name to have been derived from the French name, de Bethune, who settled in various parts of England about that time. There are several descriptions of the arms as adopted by the respective branches of the family named in the genealogical work aforesaid, slightly differing merely sufficient to distinguish the one from the other. They were barons and possessed large landed states under the ancient feudal system of land tenure—rendering therefore military service to their immediate feudal lord by furnishing a certain number of their retainers (their tenants) in time of war. It is said that the Bethunes were descended from a long line of barons of the city and territory of Besonnen in Palestine. It will also be interspersed with notes of a miscellaneous character as obtained from historical and genealogical works respecting different members of the family in England previous to 1607 and subsequent to 1293, the former date having recently been discovered to have been the date of the birth of our ancestor—the emigrant, Matthias Button, the 1st—as being the son of a Thomas Button of Harrold, England, bap. there Oct. 11, 1607, and whose father, (Thomas Button) was buried there June 26, 1617, as shown by copy of said records from the parish register of Harrold. Now lacking further evidence of identification, to establish the nativity and parentage of our said ancestor for which we are making search.

The greatest difficulty which promoters of undertakings of this character have to contend with, is that of interference by parties actuated by speculative motives, who spring up out of factions of the descendants, ready to take advantage of their relationship, which often endangers, if not entirely destroys, all prospects of success: and herein lies the secret of so many failures to recover remote inheritances, which otherwise might have been obtained and enjoyed by the heirs. The writer has had many years' experience in matters of this character. From 1852 to 1867 as attorney-at-law, and war claim agent continuously so engaged, and from 1867 to 1887 at intervals so engaged in the prosecution of pensions (and various other claims) accruing to soldiers and their representatives during the war of the rebellion of 1861, in many cases of which it became necessary to produce evidence of births, marriages and deaths—often having resort to foreign records, including English, Irish and German, in cases of alien claimants—from which experience we have gained some knowledge of the method of searching records.

In 1878 the writer published a genealogical sketch of the Webber family, of 42 pages, similar to that of the Batton family published in 1859, and for a like purpose, since which, our time has not only been occupied in collecting records and material for the completion of these genealogies, but we have also been similarly engaged in establishing claims to inheritances, during which the writer has purchased quite a collection of genealogical works, both of this country and Europe, by which we are able to trace pedigrees of almost any family name, and together with arrangements made with several professional genealogists for exchange of notes, we possess facilities for conducting works of this character, and doing a general claim agency business; and will promptly give attention to calls for our services in this capacity, in establishing pedigrees, compiling family records and charts, make search for wills, reproduce ancient arms and escutcheons on most favorable terms.

Special Requests by the Writer.
